Imagine being a Jew, having to hide most of your life because Jews were being caught and sent to camps so they could be tortured. Imagine having to follow unfair rules because of your religion. Well guess what, Anne Frank and all of the other Jews in the world didn't have to imagine because it was happening right in front of them. They were the people trying to hide from reality. This is Anne Frank's story. Learn about her amazing background, where she was hiding, how she got caught, and the tragic ending of her life.

Anne Frank had an amazing life and an exciting background. Anne was born on June 12, 1929 in a German city called Frankfurt. Her birth name was Annelies Marie Frank. Anne's older sister, Margot, was born on February 16, 1926 exactly three years older than Anne. Their parents got married May 12, 1925. In 1933, Anne's family moved to the Netherlands just as the Nazis` started going after Jews. But her background is not the only thing that was very important. Next, we're going to learn, where did Anne hide?

As you already know the Nazis were trying to catch the Jews and put them in concentration camps. That's why Anne, her family, and four other Jews were hiding. The Frank family and the other Jews hid in a Secret Annex. The Secret Annex was a dark, damp, and small room hidden behind a moveable bookcase. They spent at least two years in the Annex. The Frank family and the other Jews got help from four other people they called Helpers. The Helpers usually got the newspaper, food, clothes, supplies, and anything else any one needed. Jews believed that when the Nazis caught them they would be murdered in the camps. Now you know where they hide, but how did they get caught?

One horribly sad day the Frank family got caught. It all started one dark and gloomy morning when Anne was helping Van Pelses with his homework when some one ran upstairs. When Van and Anne reached the room, the man pointed a gun at the two of them. Now the Nazis had Van and Anne. When every one came upstairs from the Secret Annex they realized their children were caught. They thought that if their kids had to go through the Nazis torture than they should as well. So they let the Nazis find them. Anne was a very brave, smart, and intelligent girl. Which makes her tragic ending worst.

Here is Margot's and Anne's tragic ending. Anne's sister, Margot died March 6, 1945 when she fell on the stone floor and just couldn't get up anymore. Anne died on March 7, 1945 of Typhus with no clue her sister died a day before her. Anne died at the age of fifteen just three months before her sixteenth birthday. That was the tragic ending of Margot and Anne Frank.

In my opinion, Anne Frank was a very brave and smart girl. Also, Hitler had no right to treat Jews in such way just because they were different. Anne Frank wrote her diary for fun but today people read it and experience all the pain and misery she went through. That's why people today remember the amazing Anne Frank.
